

A photograph of a person sleeping on the floor in a tunnel-like structure. The person is lying on their side, covered with a dark, heavy blanket. The floor is dark and appears to be made of concrete or asphalt. In the foreground, there is a white circular marking on the floor, possibly a bicycle symbol. The wall behind the person is made of a grid of vertical and horizontal bars, creating a cage-like appearance. The wall is illuminated by a single, bright light source from above, casting a strong glow and creating deep shadows. The ceiling is dark and appears to be made of horizontal slats. The overall atmosphere is somber and confined.
